By Kristine L. Alave

A TROPICAL CYCLONE that wreaks havoc may have the makings of a "super typhoon" barreling toward the Philippines last night, with winds competing to rival with those of Tropical Storms "Nido" and "Yolanda" "Kampong."

Beating the international name "Meyi," the new typhoon was expected to enter the Philippine area of responsibility (PAR) late last night, making it the 10th weather disturbance to enter the country this year, the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) said.

Meyi—which will be renamed "Juan" once it enters the country—is expected to intensify as it heads land

Manila mayor hits back: Why air belated version only now?

THE DISMISSED CHIEF of the Manila Police District (MPD) has blasted Manila Mayor Alfredo Lim as the one responsible for the bloody outcome of the Aug. 23 hostage crisis.

In an exclusive interview with ABS-CBN on Thursday, Chief Insp. Rodolfo Magtibay said he should not be blamed for the botched rescue operation that resulted in the killing of three young Korojers because he was just following Lim's orders.

Lim yesterday (Friday) back at Magtibay for airing this "belated version."

"He should have said this from the beginning if that was the truth," the mayor said in a press.

Lim, in a statement, denied he was in full control of the operation, saying he role as the crisis management coordinator (CNC) officer was purely a "field monitor" and advisory in nature.

He said he was, in fact, "not fully informed" of the developments at the time.

The actual operation fell on der the responsibility of the critical incident management task force headed by Magtibay, the mayor said.

Magtibay said Lim, who chairs the local CMG, was in control of the operation with the hostage crisis, dismissed police officer Rodolfo Morales.

He said everything was going smoothly until Lim ordered that SPQI (Special Police Group) members, the mayor's brother, be hospitalized and brought to Manila.

Magtibay, through his lawyer Augusto Villano, told the Inquirer yesterday that every order he had issued as general commander was first cleared with Lim.

"He (Magtibay) is not blaming Mayor Lim. He is not blaming anyone. But we are leaving the legal impact of the actions of Mayor Lim to the proper law

Abad defends P21-B budget for dole-outs

By Remy C. Domingo

BUDGET SECRETARY Jesse Abad yesterday defended Malacañang's proposed P21-billion 2011 budget for the Office of the President, saying that it was "responsible" and "cautious."

In a statement distributed to lawmakers and the media, Abad said the expansion of the program was, in fact, "cautious, responsible and a substantial improvement over the existing P19-billion program."

"I think the [House] should review the budget more carefully and intensively," Abad told the members in the sidelines of press conference.

"NCT is a whole package of programs that support one another. That is why you cannot look at OCT apart from basic education requirements, apart from public health investments," said Abad, who was present at the House of Representatives lobby for the passage of Malacañang's proposed P1.495-billion budget.

Abad, now a Pampanga representative, had taken his floor on Tuesday and said the expansion of the OCT program was "responsible, auditable and carefully" because the program was not yet fully proposed.

Lack of facilities

The OCT program grants cash of between P500 to P1,400 per month to families that keep their children in school and regularly visit health centers.

Abad noted that expanding the OCT beneficiaries from the current range of one million families to 2.3 million families would entail hiring and training more people to screen and monitor the program. He also said there were not enough learning facilities and classrooms to accommodate more beneficiaries.

Malacañang was also pressing around a multiplier asking that not just to consider the situation for the OCT program, which they discovered as more "catalytic window opening."

Abad, in his statement, countered that the program was "cautious" because it would help the country comply with its national commitment to meet million more development goals (MDGs) by 2015.

The MDGs include efforts to eradicate poverty, achieve universal primary education, promote gender equality in education, reduce child mortality, improve maternal health, combat HIV/AIDS and sustain environment of sustainability.

The OCT program was "responsive," he said, because it targets directly the poor households and addresses some even as today MDG indicators such as universal elementary education and maternal health.

Substantial investments

"Really, it is an improvement because it is more comprehensive," Abad said. "The past OCT, the program comes with substantial investments in basic education, child immunization, maternal health and public health services."

He said the Department of Education's allocation was increased by P52.3 million to P207.2 million to fund 18,359 more classrooms including desks and chairs; 18,000 more teaching desks; and 12.2 million textbooks, among other educational needs.

Also, he said the proposed budget increased funding for the health facilities enhancement program of the Department of Health to P1.1 billion to P2.1 from P0.2 billion in 2009.

This will support the upgrading of around 1,278 health facilities and basic health centers, especially for basic or emergency emergency obstetric and neonatal care, he said.

"The OCT is one of the less effective programs we inherited from the past administration," he added.

He argued that the OCT expansion was feasible, especially as the Department of Social Welfare and Development has developed a proven means to reach indigenous families through the national household survey system.

Abad also said the OCT expansion will be done in three phases, one million household beneficiaries this year to 2.3 million by the end of next year. He said it will be trained and deployed to work closely with local governments and civil society.

Abad signed a manifesto against the OCT drafted by the militant lawmakers, for further public and law. With a support by Michael Con (Chair

Noynoy allies invoke party loyalty to pass 2011 budget

By Michael Lim Ulloa

WORKING BODY leaders and allies to President Aquino, while asking members to be as strong as possible in the House of Representatives to support the proposed P21-billion cash dole-out program and pass their proposed P1.495-billion budget for 2011.

Leading against them, the lower chamber was set to pass the budget bill on second readings before mid-October.

The contentious conditional cash transfer (CCT) program budget, passed under the P14.2-billion proposed budget for next year of the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD), was the immediate flashpoint in the budget's relative passage.

In prior time, about 20 congressmen were willing to support the

the passage of the DSWD budget, Rep. Juanito Torres.

The OCT program grants of between P500 to P1,400 per month to families that keep their children healthy, and in school. Budget Secretary Francisco Abad, who was the House of Representatives member of the House of Representatives, said the program was ready to start at Malacañang Palace early morning Saturday.

"The House is dominated by the President's coalition, so I think the coalition will stand behind the President for this program. At the end of the day, since the debate is finished, there's no reason to not support the President's position," said Abad.

House Majority Leader Rogelio Gonsales II said that congressmen were ready to start at Malacañang Palace early morning Saturday.

RP deserves better credit rating, says Noynoy

By Norman Borlino

PRUDENTIAL SOLIDIFIED its position as the Philippines' dominant higher credit rating due to prudent use of its assets to secure investment grade.

Prudential's debt rating was raised to a P-1 rating by Standard & Poor's, the Organization for Economic Development and Cooperation (OECD) from the level of investment grade because of its prudent use of assets to secure investment grade.

OECD is also another factor that can be considered. Also, the management of the debt has given us a surplus at this point for August," President Aquino told reporters.

"I think all of these are positive factors and even just maintaining the ratings at this point is an idea enough of a confidence-building measure for all of these investors," he added.

President Aquino said the government intends to make the business atmosphere better for investors.

"The decision, they don't do it on stock market among other things, so what we intend to do is to really make the market more attractive than most other countries to all of these investors so that the jobs which we promised first in our platform will happen," President Aquino said.

Luzon to suffer rotating outages

By Arly K. Renu

POWER DISRUPTIONS in Luzon may continue to suffer as least one to two-hour rotating outages on Monday unless repairs at the new coal-fired power plant are completed by the weekend.

"There will be no interruptions during the weekend, but we need to ensure that supply will be sufficient by Monday as we will have been running on emergency generators," said Energy Secretary Jose Almonte.

The rotating outages started at 11 a.m. yesterday because of the emergency shutdown of a unit of the 1,200 MW coal-fired facility in Pangasinan and one unit of the 700 MW Paglaos power plant in Quezon, said the National Grid Corp. of the Philippines (NGCP).

"The cause of the fault (from the grid) was that it was a short circuit in the transmission line, but we are not sure if it will be fixed by the weekend," Almonte added.

These facilities helped during the early hours of Friday because of better and consistent rate loads.

One of the rotating outages is in the 2,000 MW unit of the 2,000 MW power plant in Quezon, said the National Grid Corp. of the Philippines (NGCP).

Reduced capacity

Power interruptions

Approximating the power supply shortage was the reduced capacity of the 3,400 MW Alagasin power plant, which was running only at 1,000 MW capacity at 11:00 a.m. of Friday.

"The cause of the fault is a short circuit in the transmission line, but we are not sure if it will be fixed by the weekend," Almonte added.

This caused a severe shortage of power, which led to one to two-hour rotating outages in Metro Manila and nearby provinces like Batangas, Cavite, Laguna, Rizal and Quezon, said the NGCP.

"We are looking into the grid to see if it will be fixed by the weekend," Almonte added.

I trust my Bayer.

Proposal to include public utility buses in number code okayed

Revised by: [Name]

THE METRO Manila Council (MMC), the policy-making body of the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) composed of the mayors of 16 cities and one town in the metropolis, on Friday decided to shelve the proposal to implement the odd-even scheme for private vehicles and city and provincial buses along EDSA in a move to decongest traffic in the major thoroughfare.

Experimental basis

In its plans, the MRE agreed to include public utility buses (PUBs) in the United Vehicle Miles Traveled Reduction Program (UVRP), the number coding scheme, on an experimental basis starting mid-November.

Films were screened by the UFFHS until 2006 when then President Gloria Manzanal-Arroyo ordered their exemption upon the signing of laws regarding

Spice ball's new wrinkle

The MMC also decided to create a special committee on traffic to be headed by Queens City Mayor Herbert Bostina, co-chaired by Manhattan Mayor David Dinkins.

The committee was asked to study guidelines on the U.S.W.P. on buses, in close coordination with the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB).

META Chair Francis Tibero-ene said the add-on proposal was brought on following an evaluation of a study by the University of the Philippines' National Center for Transportation Studies, which found that even under the current number coding scheme, Ehas private buses had increased their maximum-carrying capacity.

Another study conducted by the Japan International Cooperation Agency yielded findings that Edo could physically accommodate up to 3,400 buses; around 3,600 city- & suburban buses currently use the Edo zone.

Innovative measures

The council decided it best to explore other innovative measures aimed at reducing the traffic problem, such as including public buses in the current UVRP or introducing vehicle schemes, he said.

It also resulted in drawing up traffic-safety-promotion measures and drivers' education, and mailing an Urban Transporters Guide of Codes, and Social Responsibility, taking into consideration the welfare of the people, the Metro's chief added.

During a consultation with bus operators previously, bus operators expressed their willingness to be covered by the existing term-life medical insurance.

World Bank report

The MASHA also cited a 2009 World Bank report which projected that traffic along highways and other major thoroughfares in Puerto Rico will rise by 50% in the next 20 years. The report also projected that the economy will grow by 1.5% annually, which would increase the need for roads.

Persons during yesterday's meeting were Mayor's first wife, Mercedes Santiago of Venezuela, Gaston Schreyer of California, Julia Rey Tanguay of Riverside, [a] de Guzman of Markham, Border Bishop of Marshfield, Alfredo Lim of Manila and Jaime Medina of the Municipality of Oaxaca.

Calicut Vice Mayor and vice-president of the Vice Mayor's League of the Philippines Edgardo Fojas and Councilor's League of the Philippines president Isatiah Bernabe also attended the meeting.

Speakerholders

Businesses could then consult the stakeholders—from consumers to suppliers & delivery—since there are many issues that need to be addressed before any scheme is implemented.

The council initially planned to implement the cold-rooms scheme from Nov. 13 to Jan. 13, 2011, but Alshab proposed that the warmer cooling scheme for dry loads be implemented in the meantime.

There are many inputs that should be considered, so we cannot just impose it right away. The MESA should find other ways how to decrease traffic along I-15.

Sanjour's special committee is planning to finish its study and come up with a cost-protection traffic management plan by the end of the year.

The study, he added, will serve as a "test."

Groups join program to save Boracay

By Nestor F. Burgos Jr.
Inquirer Staff Writer

BORACAY ISLAND—Private organizations have partnered with local government units of Aklan and business and non-governmental organizations in an integrated program to preserve Boracay's world-recognized value.

The Boracay Beach Management Program (BBMP), launched on Sept. 26, is a long-term project to address the island's environmental concerns brought by the booming tourism industry.

Leslie Quins, president of Boracay Foundation Inc. (BFI), one of partners in the project, said the BBMP would focus on seven priority concerns, including coastal resources management, wastewater management, water and waste water management and solid waste management.

"The program is an integrated community effort to help preserve the island. It brings together various stakeholders of the community to address environmental concerns," Quins said.

The partners of the program include the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI)-Boracay, Prime Corp., Prime Foundation, Sun World Corp., Boracay Island Water Transportation Ltd.

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources and Tourism, the Aklan Tourism Council, the Philippine Army, the Philippine Coast Guard and the Philippine National Police Tourism Infrastructure and Inspection Group Authority (PTI) are also involved in the project.

The program is the first of its kind in the island of Mindanao and supports the goal.

"The island remained around two passed locations No. 100 'Outstanding Boracay Beach Management Program of the Local Government' and has also benefited and winning and awarding campaign especially on the island's beach."

Roche's Accu-Chek Performa helps people with diabetes get testing right the first time

ROGEE Diabetes Care introduced its second blood glucose monitor for people with diabetes who want to work fast and live more like Acu-Check Performa. The new Acu-Check Performa system has been designed to give users added confidence in their blood glucose testing. The Acu-Check Performa system incorporates system checks before and after the blood drop is applied, helping ensure that each test results

The Nova Check Proforma system was developed in response to excessive intrusions of research with customers. In a word, the system delivers features that are most important to them. These features include a small blood sample size (10 µL), a short test time (3 seconds), and alternative site testing capously. Additionally, the Auto-Check Performance analyzer shows, itemized, reasons that the user will not get an improved reading: there is an insufficient amount of blood applied to the strip, the user tilting on the Auto-Check Performance test, using unclean and/or alcohol on the sample; quality and efficiency is the case that more likely is needed, the system may be the user and allows them to apply more blood to the strip.

The Auto-Check Performance system also sends a text reminder every 4 hours per day and the real-time check back up maintains the time and memory for up to 72 hours if the battery has expired. These features ensure that when the blood glucose system is needed, it is ready to go.

Many papers with diabetes and oral health care professionals actively review blood glucose results and evaluate trends order to improve long-term management of blood glucose levels. The FreeClick Pro lancet meter provides data averaging over periods of 7, 14, and 30 days, in addition to storing the results of 100 tests in memory.

With more than 30 years experience in diabetes monitoring, Accu is committed to be a study organization of people's expectations for effective diabetes self-management. That is, we believe that the Accu Check Performa concept brings another step in the blood glucose monitoring technology, meeting the demands of the increasing population of people with diabetes. Accu Check is the no. 1 blood glucose meter brand worldwide.

RCBC raising $100M from share sale

By Paolo C. Mariano III

MANILA—LED Retail Commercial Banking Corp. (RCBC) is expanding its capital base to position itself for more organic growth and help raise resources for the possible acquisition of smaller lenders.

In a disclosure, RCBC said it would raise at least $100 million in fresh capital from the sale of 260 million to 280 million shares in three-year tranches.

This will be equivalent to 17 percent of the bank's total common shares. Based on the company's closing price on Friday, the block will be valued at P5.4 billion.

The offering will be made up of 50.4 million common shares in the bank's treasury while the balance will be sold by Pan Maritime Management and Investment Corp. (PMMIC) from its existing shares in RCBC.

"Thereafter, PMMIC will subscribe to the same number of shares of the bank as it sold in third-party investors. Such subscription by PMMIC will come from the proposed increase in capital stock of the bank, which was approved on June 28, 2016," the company said.

Since PMMIC, which is also owned by the Pachecoys, plans to acquire an equal number of shares that it is selling—coming out of a planned increase in the company's capital stock—in order for the bank will not be diluted.

This means that PMMIC is not taking a portion of its share to sell to new investors to facilitate lower increase in size on the capital.

RCBC earlier said its first annual net profit grew 23 percent year on year to P2.1 billion on a double-digit growth in interest income and treasury earnings.

TV still top source of info for RP, says Nielsen

Survey reveals rise in number of radio listeners

By Dexter L. Lopez

TELEVISION REMAINS Filipino preferred medium of getting their daily dose of information, whether in terms of news content or advertising, according to Nielsen Media Research.

In the latest edition of the consultative firm's annual survey, an estimated 74 percent of all respondents said that they had watched television in the week before they were polled.

This was a much lower than the 92 percent level of TV viewership reported in 2009, and the 95 percent level in 2008.

"TV is still king," said Nielsen Media executive director Jay Rosman in a briefing yesterday. He also took note of the rapidly evolving media landscape in the country, where the Internet and mobile phone have now become major information delivery channels compared to only a few years ago.

Rosman said that TV viewership was still highest during the so-called primetime hours of 8 to 10 p.m., although the survey also revealed significant levels of viewership during the nonprime hours.

In comparison to TV, only 65 percent of the population were found to have listened to radio broadcasts in the day before they were polled for the 2010 results. This reflected, however, a slight improvement in the number of radio listeners, which stood at 62 percent of the population the previous year.

Outdoor advertising still is 2010, with 18 percent of the surveyed population saying that they received information from outdoor ads last week. In 2009, outdoor advertising was the source of information for 12 percent of the population.

According to Nielsen, print media continues to struggle in 2010 with only 15 percent of the population saying they read newspapers the day before the poll. This was slightly lower than the 16 percent and 18 percent recorded by the 2009 and 2008 editions of the survey, respectively.

Magazines, meanwhile maintained its stable position, rising to 9 percent of the

Banks to open micro offices in rural areas

By Michelle R. Ranao

THE SENATE passed legislation allowing banks to establish micro banking offices (MBOs) in remote areas to enhance accessibility of financial services throughout the country.

Unlike regular bank branches, MBOs only provide select services and as there are lower requirements for banks to establish them.

An MBO may for example provide for savings deposits, taking disbursements of loans, and collection of payments, sale of micro-insurance products, facilitation of remittance transactions, and acceptance of utility payments.

"The MBO shall only perform the activities for which it has specifically applied for and had been authorized to perform," the bill said in a provision.

The RFR said the move is to allow the establishment of MBOs in far-flung areas would make it easier for people to obtain access to basic financial services.

According to regulation, there are a lot of unbanked banks in the country, but many of them are concentrated in the National Capital Region and other urban centers.

They admit that there are still a lot of places in the country where banking services are easily lacking.

Also, the bill has included the collection of micro-deposits on the list of micro-finance services a bank may offer.

Filinvest plans to increase capital stock by 70%

By Paolo S. Montolio

Property developer says capital hike will help fund expansion

LISTED PROPERTY developer Filinvest Development Corp. plans to hike its capital stock by 70 percent to help fund the company's expansion.

In a regulatory disclosure, the G-100s-listed property firm said its board had approved a hike in its authorized capital stock to P17 billion from the current P10 billion.

The approved increase is broken down to five billion common shares with a par value of one peso each and two billion preferred shares which will also be one peso apiece. The company likewise approved the issuance of as much as three billion of these new shares to Filinvest Holdings Corp., which in turn plans to sell the same amount of Filinvest shares, which it already holds, in a third party.

"The aforementioned placing and subscription transaction as well as the authority of the board to implement the placing and subscription will also be submitted for approval by the stockholders of the company during the special stockholders' meeting on Nov. 25," the company said in a statement.

With the announcement, a trading halt will be implemented on Monday Oct. 18, from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m.

The company earlier announced that it posted a 54 percent growth in first semester consolidated net income to P1.9 billion.

The company also realized P2.4 billion in net revenues arising from its real estate operations.

Sale of lots, condominiums and industrial units as well as club shares during the period amounted to P0.4 billion.

The figure was 50 percent higher than that of the same period last year.

New measures against power monopoly set in place

By Amy R. Ramos

RAIDERS A year after it issued a market cap for 2010, the Energy Regulatory Commission has again set limits on the power capacity a single company or group can generate to protect electricity consumers from monopoly and market power abuse.

In a resolution, the ERC explained the need to adjust the limits due to changes in the installed generating capacity per grid and the decrease in the national grid's demand capacity.

"Considering the market cap is adjusted every year on March 31,

The ERC revised the limits to reflect a decrease in the installed generating capacity in the national grid to 14,203.3 megawatts (MW) from the second half of 2010 from 14,712.6 MW as of March this year.

The bulk of the capacity is in the Luzon grid with 10,039 MW, down from the 11,388.5 MW reported in March this year. The capacity in the Visayas Islander increased to 1,504.6 MW for the second half of the year from 1,713.1 MW as of last March. In Mindanao, capacity dipped to 1,799.1 MW from 1,603.1 MW.

Under the Electric Power Industry Reform Act, a company or group of related companies is limited from owning, operating or controlling more than 30 percent of the installed generating capacity of a grid and 25 percent of the country's total. As such, power generation companies are not allowed to own facilities with installed capacities exceeding 5,251.7 MW in Luzon (from 5,251.3 MW as of last March 2010), 1,664.5 MW in Visayas (from 1,414.6 MW), and 1,702.9 MW for Mindanao (from 1,603.1 MW).

For the national grid, the new market share limit was set at a lower 3,466.4 MW from 3,476.1 MW.

The steps are necessary to ensure no generation firm and later market competition in the generation and supply sectors, as well as protect the public from any adverse effects that may be brought about by monopoly and market power abuse.

Rise in prices of building materials eases

By Ramon W. Domingo

THE INCREASE in retail prices of construction supplies in Metro Manila eased by 2.6 percent year-on-year in August—in line with a four-month, according to the National Statistics Office.

NSO data show that the retail price index of selected construction materials in the National Capital Region—covering various sub-groups of products—has been increasing since November 2009.

The price increase in August was attributed to lower prices for steel reinforcement bars in the index. The biggest slowdown was observed in plumbing materials, price index of which eased at 6.1 percent from the year from 3 percent in September.

Also easing was the rate of increase in prices of electrical materials (2.3 percent from 5.3 percent in September), painting materials and related compounds (2.2 percent from 2.8 percent), miscellaneous construction materials (0.1 percent from 0.3 percent), masonry materials (1.7 percent from 2 percent), and masonry materials (1.0 percent from 2 percent).

The rate of hike of monthly materials were unchanged at 3.9 percent. On a yearly basis, the retail price index for construction supplies in Metro Manila eased around to 0.1 percent from 4.1 percent in September.

Prices increases slowed around for various materials 10.1 percent from 0.1 percent and picked up for electrical materials and painting materials and related compounds (0.1 percent and 0.3 percent, respectively). There was change in September.

On the other hand, the price hike in masonry materials were slower at 0.1 percent from 2 percent. The NSO said the price index area observed to plywood, laminated, selected stone ware tiles, electrical wires, and pipes.

Luzon's period houses transplanted beside the sea

Text by Tessa P. Salazar

THERE ARE treasure hunters. There are art collectors. There are classic car restorers. But do you know that there is also an architectural collector who searches for crumbling historical structures, disassembles them, and reassembles and reconstructs them piece by painstaking piece beside the sea?

Arny Aciano, owner of property firm The Sun And Builders, has done precisely that for 22 heritage structures in Luzon. These include "five halls" during the 19th and 19th century in various locations in Luzon, and more collectively known as the Luzon Heritage House, 150 km from Manila.

Historical art village

These houses stand on a 10-hectare historical art village within the 400-hectare Green Shores Resort in the town of Baguio in Ilocos. This remarkable undertaking had its soft opening to the public on March 15.

Aciano and the general manager were not on hand when a group of journalists visited the village Oct 5.

A replica of the Casa (house) for Ponce de Leon, caught the visitor's attention first. Though it was not built of the original materials of the 20th-century material, this replica accurately captured the old glory of Ilocos as a premier shopping and tourist destination of Manila in the early 1900s. Like the original, the Casa Leon built in 2007 features stone and stone on the ground floor and a hotel on the second and third floors with 17 rooms. The interior was designed by Aciano's wife Yon, an interior designer.

In 1780, the Casa Grande of the prominent Reyes family of Cebu, Pangasinan, made its way to the village. The new owner, Aciano, wanted to be a modern, historic, and other interior details. The Spanish grandeur of the house was preserved but up to the present, the house was not yet completed. In 2008, 228 years after it was first built, Casa Grande was transplanted to the village.

The Casa Hidalgo, in Baguio, Ilocos, was originally located on Hidalgo Street in Quezon, Manila. Built in 1887 by the family of Sotelo Hidalgo, the mansion, filled with intricate carvings, from the colonnaded driveway to the columns supporting the balcony, was designed by Iloilo Rector y Aciano, the first Filipino to practice architecture in the country during the Spanish era.

The Casa Reyes was an originally constructed in 1912 in San Francisco, Pangasinan, for Carlos and Manuel Reyes, and re-

The pop musician on his career-defining role in 'The Social Network'

AS THE critically acclaimed film "The Social Network" screens next week in theaters all over the country, Super brings to you our exclusive interview with lead star Justin Timberlake, after the movie's world premiere at the New York Film Festival.

The 29-year-old Grammy-winning recording artist plays the role of Sean Parker, the founder of the controversial music-sharing site Napster.

Parker was the guy who introduced the young visionary Mark Zuckerberg to Silicon Valley's venture capitalists, effectively transporting the world of Facebook from the halls of Harvard to millions of households all over the globe.

Facebook redefined our social fabric overnight. What are your thoughts on the attention towards it? Why do you think over 500 million people log on every single day?

There's a scene in the film where Jason (Mark Zuckerberg) talks about being in a club where you're the president, and it's a party and you're throwing it. I think that's kind of the technique behind having your own Facebook profile. You create it and it's your own world. I think that's what makes the film so intriguing.

If you could not trade the bigger picture, I think social networking in general is still a top-notch—it is a good thing or a bad thing? There's always a medium that we push because we have to use it, have it and use it as we see. The accessibility and instant gratification of having all your photos floating—that's probably what makes Facebook or any other social network so great to people.

I think that's the intrigue. Is it going to create great things in this world or are we going to create more with it? I think that's got people in the cinema.

Since co-star Jesse Eisenberg never got the chance to meet his character, Zuckerberg founder Mark Zuckerberg, but we understood you did get to meet Sean Parker. To read like, how did that turn out?

I briefly bumped into him here in New York one time. But we spoke for probably all of five minutes. And ironically I was here before I was actually cast in the role. I was still going through an auditions process then, but the Internet had already announced I got the part and it wasn't true. So I went through a three-week period where I was thinking, "Geezus, I better get this role because everyone thinks I'm playing it." (Laughs.)

But yeah, we met briefly and he seemed very nice but we didn't really talk about much. He mentioned he had read the script and he thought I was going to be playing the part, so that was interesting.

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 50 percent. Obesity is a leading cause of heart disease, diabetes, and other health problems. In 1990, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) estimated that 15 percent of the U.S. population was obese. By 2000, that number had risen to 25 percent. And in 2008, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reported that 33 percent of the U.S. population was obese. The increase in obesity is a major public health concern, and it is important to understand the causes and consequences of this trend.

the 1990s, the number of people who have been infected with HIV has increased significantly. In 1990, there were about 1 million people living with HIV in the United States. By 2000, that number had risen to about 4 million. And in 2009, there were about 12 million people living with HIV in the United States. This is a dramatic increase, and it is a reflection of the fact that HIV is a very contagious virus. It can be spread through sexual contact, blood, and breast milk. And it can be spread from a mother to her child during pregnancy or childbirth. HIV is a very serious disease, and it can lead to AIDS, which is a life-threatening condition. But there are ways to prevent HIV, and there are ways to live with HIV. If you are at risk of getting HIV, you should talk to your doctor about getting tested. And if you are living with HIV, you should talk to your doctor about getting treatment. Treatment can help you live longer and healthier, and it can help you prevent the virus from spreading to others.

THESE are the most important findings from the study, which was published in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) on 11 November 2003. The researchers found that the risk of death from heart disease was 25% higher in people who had been exposed to asbestos, even after adjusting for other factors such as smoking and high blood pressure. The risk of death from lung cancer was also 25% higher in people who had been exposed to asbestos, even after adjusting for other factors such as smoking. The researchers also found that the risk of death from mesothelioma was 100% higher in people who had been exposed to asbestos, even after adjusting for other factors such as smoking. The researchers also found that the risk of death from other causes was 10% higher in people who had been exposed to asbestos, even after adjusting for other factors such as smoking. The researchers also found that the risk of death from all causes was 15% higher in people who had been exposed to asbestos, even after adjusting for other factors such as smoking. Budding artist with a social conscience

YOUNG artist Vincent Torbio's self-portrait

Bagyo fine arts student Vincent Torbio puts himself to school and supports his family through his art

By Anna Ojeda
Student Center Bureau, University of the Philippines

THE YOUNG 18-YEAR-OLD Vincent Torbio took to his bed in confusion with reading. His art speaks of poverty and pain. "Nino: Batang Tula" shows pieces of a garbage bag and a very dedicated in a child's dirty school blouse. Some depict others: "Weaving Dreams" is an oil painting of a barbeque grill with seven by the indigenous people of Cordillera.

Most of the works represent an emotional state: "Education is Suffering," a gripping work with doodle-like stick figures. "Ang Ina ng Anak" is a sculpture of a woman with her back turned. "May Pag-Asa Pa" is Vincent's response to all these changes, reflecting an artist's struggle in a changing world.

Each piece has a form, methodological attention to detail, as if every square and stroke had a purpose. There is a poetic quality of melody and color.

Childhood eye-opener

This young lad is taking Fine Arts at the University of the Philippines Baguio. But the education and inspiration behind his work came long before he stepped in the university.

Torbio and his brother were singlehandedly raised by their mother, as Vincent learned to fend for himself at a very young age.

He took on all sorts of odd jobs to help his mom, like being a baggy boy (baggage carrier) and selling oranges and mangoes in the neighborhood (barbeque grill). When he was selling flowers in Baguio Park, he noticed the amazing scenery for his painting inspiration.

"I started to like being involved in my art," he said. "I was inspired by the colors and the way things looked and purchased my first set of oil paints and oil palette. While his friends were out playing and running around, he stayed at home and taught himself to draw."

"His mother let me manage public art. This was long before he was a high school graduate," he said. "The more work, the more he was able to express himself. He was a talented boy from a poor family, but he was not just a poor boy, he was a budding artist."

In order to pursue his educational passion, he knew he needed to keep selling flowers and mangoes. He needed something more stable. He moved from high school, he moved out to work as a houseboy.

Earning his keep

His starting salary was P50 per week. Vincent learned how to budget every single

How to get the perfect pair of jeans—and make it last long

By Mike Mark H. Solter
Contributor

IF YOU'VE bought a pair of jeans for years, they should wear it out. It's only so the right day will then fall right down it, do it again and then—except the feeling gillypops.

As I recently discovered, the perfect way to test for jeans' longevity: denim pair is to wear it a lot and wash it less. Simple, but true.

Epiphany Jay Austin, brand manager of Tough Jeans in the Philippines. Usually, if you're the one, you're not the one. But when it comes to jeans, you should wear it every day and wash it less.

The explanation behind this denim gold rule is that your body wears it out, which makes the denim fabric pliable. In the longer you wear your jeans, the more that it will eventually conform to your body shape—so the point it will soon like second skin.

This isn't the only unspoken denim tip. Because, who has also washed with JIM, and brands like Topdog, Topman and Dandee.

LUKE JARVIS

What's the story behind your fave pair of jeans?

Celebs talk about why their choice denims are special, treasured and irreplaceable

By Mike Mark H. Solter

IT WAS A huge lesson in the last part. I got keep wearing it together! My cousin (I see how massive collection of jeans jeans, Tim Religion, etc. I want to live twice and see her entire collection. She said to me, "Try mine on, Tim." In a kid, and I still in love with this perfect fit. Tim Religion, my style. I said to her, "Can I just say this?" she said, "Yes, no, I'm not." It has been my love for the past few years now.

—Gemma Cruz

I was actually discovered by Justin Timberlake through a letter in a newspaper about jeans. It was in 2006 for Vibe magazine. Without that picture, I don't know where I'd be now.

—Katie Hong Dow

I bought my favorite jeans—dark blue, size 32, straight cut—in San Francisco. They were cheap, but I was still in the dressing room. When I stepped out, I didn't know that they were in 7 p.m. on Sundays. They pair well up being my favorite jeans.

—Rylee

When I was in school, my high school, I had a crush on this girl and I'd see her on weekends. That time, I didn't have money to take her to the mall, so what we did was go to the park in the village garden here. Just we had to find a place to go to get to the other side. One time, I didn't know there was a wall behind me and just thing I knew there was a big tree on the back pocket of the pants. She was nice enough to get a hair clip to show the big clip. My new favorite pair of jeans is this faded denim pair. I see 300 denim. Simple jeans, simple, which I'm sure wouldn't get too even if I found that denim again.

—Luka, 16 years

I liked it really much, have a favorite pair because it's very old. Therefore, I have you to find the perfect pair.

—Celia, 16 years

When buying a new pair, the suggestion is never going to have one and another too, because these are the best styles. You should also fit the pair—wash out, size, and even wear it to check if you feel comfortable and can move in them.

When you reach make up your mind to choose two sizes, never choose the bigger size. You're guaranteed to get bigger with every wash.

So avoid with the smaller sizes, though, because a too-tight pair can give you a real fit top (you know that huge creased above the waistline when your pants are too tight). And when your pair shrinks, you might end up having movement restrictions.

Finding the perfect size is also important: the smaller with high-rise jeans because they might end up looking like your pants on you. But don't instantly go for super low-rise jeans, either, because you might expose a whole lot when wearing leggings.

According to body type

If your body type is leaner, choosing you are muscular with wide shoulders, go for midweight light wash jeans. Even they give the illusion of curves and volume. Also look for jeans that have five pockets with embellishments because they add bulk to your behind, making it look fuller.

For those whose weight is found along the midsection (your body type is apple), this rule should be avoided. Instead, your wish to regular waist jeans. To balance the upper body go for straight cut denim with wide legs. Side pockets can also make you look slimmer and wider.

A MULT-POCKET bulb makes your behind look bigger.

The golden rule: wear it a lot and wash it infrequently

If you want curves and volume, go for a pair of jeans with side pockets.

The DOLL girls, Vicky Hernandez and Sarah Miller

Radio's accidental role models win a fan base

By Erica Paredez
Contributor

WHEN MORING and brown MTV's Sarah Miller was added to radio on based on radio DJ Joe Uzo, it was a whirlwind of phone and meetings, which demanded a lot of decisions making: choosing her on-foot Vicky Hernandez, the show title, "The Dollhouse," and all its signature elements of style.

"The concept wasn't really as defined as it ended up turning out to be," says Uzo, "but because we both generally have the same personality... things clicked, and the show became a breeding ground for positivity, positivity, knowledge and light-hearted fun... about as much as you can get."

From a general idea of wanting to incorporate in the show their love for music, fashion and culture, opening regular segments, such as, "The Dollhouse" and "The Dollhouse," "The Dollhouse" and "The Dollhouse" of the Day."

All segments were so popular that they were had segments creating "Dollhouse" and "Dollhouse" news stories for them. There were also segments speaking the show every day of the day and discussing their mandatory "Dollhouse" on air.

Real role models

These two dolls break down the notion that models don't have the better to go with the beauty.

Without meaning to be, they have become role models for positive thinking. In the same people who make put on a public image, Vicky and Sarah possess nothing about of themselves.

"I think everybody knows that the second I got onto MTV that I had no intention of being just a mainstream, but modeling is part of my world, and no really, and that's all I am interested about... that we keep things real," says Sarah.

Vicky sometimes thinks, "When I was growing up, what did I need to learn? What advice would have been good?" and she says she still looks for the youth in the radio show.

Don't get it twisted though, these girls do, so know how to have fun. If you have ever heard Sarah's little side comments, Vicky's infectious giggles or their easy-on-the-eyes, you'll have a newfound appreciation for how well rounded they actually are.

Vicky also knows the value of her position and refuses to take it for granted. Despite all the party young things in media using this 23-year-old has her head screwed on right and screwed on right.

"I know that at the end of the day, what's really important is not the fame or attention you receive, but how many people you can help... how many lives you can change. I don't want to influence people to make the wrong things," she stresses.

And when exactly does all this awareness come from? It's all their influences and role models. "My family and friends play a huge role in my life. I always talk to them about what I am thinking and feeling. They influence me, from my behavior to my music tastes," says Vicky, while Sarah adds that she still on a constant look-out for role models.

"The reason I came up with The Dollhouse segment, not because it, perhaps selfishly, was in search of a theme and thought that the youth could stand on their own two feet and grow up," Sarah says. She names Kara Hines, Jim Parsons, Ryan Reynolds and Cory Quinn as inspiration for taking her love of country to a

"The past year taught me to know that I have someone out there that I can count on when I'm in a bit of a bind," says Vicky.

When asked what she made the daily dose of depression, Vicky said that being in touch with people from everywhere in the world was one of the best parts of her job.

In some instances, Vicky would drop in regularly, and she has been quite active academically. Thanks to the Internet, Twitter and other social networks.

"And I," Sarah says, "I have taken something to heart with watching the sun rise over Manila every day. What a different perspective. Every week is my day to see a new place."

Vicky considers having their last day "a moment" as one of the best parts of her experience and down to its conclusion with an extra note from one of the kind words and encouragement from her. There was also a big sign for Vicky.

"We were able to help a lot of people who were in a bad place. I feel like we were able to reach a lot of people who didn't have access to their kind of advice," she says.

Salinas's love of helping children and VICKY started very early.

Together with her

In the VICKY Foundation, Salinas said that she has been involved in the organization for a long time, even meeting up and so something on their behalf, because of all their inspiring actions. Forget going online to find out the latest in movie schedules, restaurant reviews and collegiate basketball scores. Get them on mobile with Nokia's latest Ovi applications with local content

No Future Card

IT'S THE weekend once again, and you and your friends are trying to find ways to spend these glorious two days that just don't seem to last long enough. Are you still logging online to check out movie-synopsis, schedules of your fave music or which restaurant to try next?

Yeah, we know you're doing it with your super duper Wi-Fiable smartphones in the comfort of your own home that's fully connected, so turn on through your unlimited Internet access provided by your local network. But do tell, you're still searching on Internet browser, yes?

Please don't tell us you're still calling the thermostat's automated hotline (even if it's through your super-cool communication device that everyone else is just utilizing via online). It's practically 2011, and if your friends' text messages are available with a few clicks on a laptop, so are the latest in libsex.

If you're connected to the Internet through Wi-Fi or through your mobile service network, just open your Check the City application and find the next movie screening nearest you, or the all-time great restaurant you've always been meaning to try with the March Funday widget. The goodness is opening up your laptop, hitting an Internet café or even going back home just to know if there's a site in Greenwich or not—you don't even have to touch an Internet browser on your mobile phone.

How to stay connected while traveling —minus the roaming costs

Verbal I had an unlimited mobile internet system in my handbag

By Tania Torg

Contributor

NOWADAYS, we feel like a stranger in a foreign country than having limited phone access. The confusion between expecting around sending messages and making calls while abroad and a prepaid plan with all the unlimited bells and whistles is glaring, and don't get me started on the lack of internet access.

PHONE covers various Wi-Fi broadband modem and a good alternative to a laptop for traveling.

Hardly there is a better way to travel and stay connected without incurring prohibitive roaming costs. After a little research and planning, I finally came across a great solution, which I managed to implement during a trip to Malaysia.

With the help of my iPhone, a USB broadband modem, and a portable broadband router (available in Amazon.com), I was able to read messages, use mobile internet 24-7 for the whole day—and it only cost me $200 a day, not to say, phone bill, roaming charges.

After checking out Singapore's available mobile networks in the US, I ended up purchasing a 30GB (4GB 3G) prepaid mobile broadband USB card from Net10. The USB comes preloaded with credits, which lets you subscribe to a 5-day unlimited roaming service.

I plugged the USB into the router, which was connected to the modem, and voila! I had an unlimited mobile internet-sponsoring traveling.

The portable router allowed me to hook up my iPhone and other Wi-Fi enabled devices in the network. That way, only my USB card was used and I could still receive messages from my MonclerSMS lets you purchase branded SMS credits, which you can use to send text messages to any number (works on iPad, iPhone, too). Ecstatic over Etsy

IT WOULDN'T have at first hit me myself and my back in 2008, I noticed two bad cases from an eBay seller and never noticed them. It took Ray's intervention between the seller and myself before I could get my money refunded.

While this experience was scarring, especially for someone who lives in deep online, I refused to give up, but I had also learned my lesson—this wasn't for indecisive perfectionists and I had to make the most busy boy.

For anyone who hasn't experienced Five hundred, it is an online marketplace populated by different kinds of artists. It's pretty much like eBay except none of the things sold at Five are handmade by some truly talented artists.

“I spend days putting one sleep apnea sleep apnea at a time. I find that just getting out of bed, one hand-crafted leather laptop sleeve, one to my surprise, even though it's a little bit of a pain. The amount of time for me at a time is so much longer than for the rest of my personal, my business is usually filled with lots of stuff I want to buy instantly. I end up not buying anything because the sheer volume of time on my website is so overwhelming that it becomes difficult to choose.”

It wasn't until recently that a dining waitress had caught my eye and drew me to it so much that I bought it on the spot, but not after getting in touch with the shop's seller and having the waitress committed to my satisfaction. In fact, I had the chair lengthened and was even given a selection of different types of shades to choose from. This is the nicest home on

Ramblings, learnings of a tween on school, love and life

Antipathy

A few people are shunning their studies for fun; but the majority of them are just dazedly in love with love

By Hannah Malabon
Student-Campus Blogger, In Is Belle Santiago
Zobel School

CURIOUSLY, I like to rant to my friends about the importance of school. Our friends like to rant to me about their hatred for school. I go through this daily, feeling the intensity of my ranting through the corridors again and again. There's nothing I could say against it, I've been told like for it.

I'm a high school student. I've gone through basic Math and basic English (I enjoyed English more than Math). I have gone through all the other elementary subjects.

I remember sitting back with friends and having exciting field trips. I was still small the time I would go to the library with my boyfriend. We'd run there, visit with my little brother and his friend and talk about his things.

We would discuss, wonder and share deep into the realities of the world. Photographs that our open minds would see truth. But because we are young, we are naive; our knowledge is being kept in a four-walled place, allowing us to be negative and sad, while only looking at the positive and the good.

The good and bad guardians

Our parents have been that we have only when we were good. The bad would either be pushed away or ignored in such ways. I can still hear them telling me: "Don't do this, don't do that" before my 15th birthday. They were all bigger than me. They looked like giants from another world, or gods.

I listened, because they were my supposed voice of reason; they were my guiding light. This is what I learned at such a young age, along with all of the good and the bad in the world.

Like I said, I'm a high school student. I've met many students. Some were as simple as a difficult lesson, while others were as complicated as a field trip where some were not interested.

I loved my high school many times—in the halls of my school, near the gates and near the classrooms—but those don't matter. There are many memories of the wonderful years that I carefully look, like delicate treasures in my heart, forever to keep near my mind.

Really, it's the broken stories, the heart aches and the tiny fabric that I remember. The only things I slowly recall though are the feelings of antipathy.

Hard lived life

Life obviously does not come easy. We are on top of the world one minute, rock the under one. We feel our share of heartbreaks, lonely regretting thoughts. I have this unrealistic urge to please everybody. I have gotten to the point that I'll sacrifice when I am for everyone's sake, because it was what made me happy. Or so I thought.

I spent so much time listening to who I was in their lives—so adjust and conform so that they would never be upset about me.

I spent sleepless nights worrying and thinking about what others thought of me and wondering how wondering what it would be like to be someone that everybody loved and someone that nobody hated.

We study hard, and then we slack off. During class, we dream about the weekend, summer and summer holidays. During the summertime, we dream about How to tell if you have a rat problem?

FOR MANY parents, especially mothers, home is considered as the safest place for their children. However, the increasing number of home visits has become a major concern for parents because of the diseases they bring.

If a mouse brings danger, rats and mice can cause hepatitis and other deadly diseases. How do you tell if you have a rat problem at home?

Kathryn Grayson was a double treat

By Helen Carver

ONE OF the most remarkable facts—and misnomers—about the life of the Hollywood musical is the beautiful and numerous appearance of Kathryn Grayson. Born in Idaho, North Carolina, in 1925, the soprano was discovered by Eddie Cantor's wife when she was 16. When she ended her brief Hollywood career, Grayson was the only woman in the company of "Vocalists" like Gene Moore, Jeanette MacDonald, Irene Stearns, Rose Stevens and Lily Pons.

The young queen of Hollywood musicals first met her future husband in 1941, though the singing style was not of the operatic kind. When, everywhere across the country,

Justin Timberlake, Aaron Sorkin discuss Facebook flick

LOS ANGELES—Brought from "The Social Network" that Sony Pictures showed us in its Cannes last July didn't prepare us for the raucous finished product that now runs some 100 miles in New York.

The marketing script by Aaron Sorkin and the masterful direction of David Fincher, matched by some genius cinematography by everyone in the cast, led to Steve Buscemi, Andrew Garfield and Justin Timberlake, make "The Social Network" a winner.

Aaron and Justin, who give his best cinematic performance to date, agree that the film's director viewpoint on how the phenomenally popular social networking site began in Harvard is one among the movie's appealing elements.

"It's several people's version of the same story," Aaron told us. "There are a lot of versions of the work, and I explained them for the purpose of storytelling."

TIMBERLAKE, for the first time, his friends are interested in a movie he's in. Sorkin's version

There's a foundation effect. The screenplay comes out of two discussions that are happening concurrently with two lawsuits brought against Mark Zuckerberg (played by Timberlake) and Facebook, so there were a lot of questions in these discussions.

Different versions

"We're having different versions of what they have happened, but the gist of it is clear. When he was a 19-year-old sophomore at Harvard, Mark, from his Auntie's room, started this website which, at the time, was called TheFacebook.com.

Aaron continued, "Sean Parker (Timberlake), who founded Napster, which was the website that stole music from the music industry, came along on his Mark took Facebook from a dorm room operation to what it is now. But, in doing so, Steve broke up the friendship between Mark and his best friend, Eduardo Saverin, played by Garfield."

"In addition, there are two brothers, identical twins named Cameron and Tyler Winklevoss, who claim that they came to Mark with an idea very similar to Facebook. They wanted Mark to do the computer programming. They claim that Mark stole the idea from Facebook from them. This movie has two details that happened or not."

Big breaks for new TV-film comers

By Hazel U. Torres

SEVERAL BEGINS established stars, because their popularity and legions of loyal fans are good testimony that they are professional and can act in films.

But, what happens when "old" stars' careers are cold? Producers like to discover new talents, despite the risks, money and marketing involved, because the local entertainment scene is much oriented to a local and young fan base to be imperceptibly heavy in the industry's profitability index.

Thus, this season, some fairly and hopefully proven new leads are being given their big breaks in "Sawtooth" TV-film production.

Cinematic approach

"Sawtooth" explores the lives of two young women, Bianca and Lisa. The new delivery from the cinematic approach uses the cinematic popular melodramatic mode—and that may not be a bad thing, since viewers may be weary for a healthy dose of romance.

CONCEALING AND DEL. Here, a young woman is the lead in the new movie "Sawtooth."

The new "Sawtooth" film should be congratulated for its big break, but the pay is still not as high as the film's in the new or old. Still, in particular, the movie is a (no pun intended) as a rather bland performance—maybe the director is in the new show?
